NEW-BORN

Your brother has a falcon,
Your sister has a flower;
But what is left for mannikin,
Born within an hour?

I'll nurse you on my knee, my knee,
My own little son;
I'll rock you, rock you, in my arms,
My least little one.

THE ONLY CHILD

Crying, my little one, footsore and weary?
Fall asleep, pretty one, warm on my shoulder;
I must tramp on through the winter night dreary,
While the snow falls on me, colder and colder.

You are my one, and I have not another;
Sleep soft, my darling, my trouble and treasure;
Sleep warm and soft, in the arms of your mother,
Dreaming of pretty things, dreaming of pleasure.

HOPE

I dug and dug amongst the snow,
And thought the flowers would never grow;
I dug and dug amongst the sand,
And still no green thing came to hand.

Melt, O snow! the warm winds blow
To thaw the flowers and melt the snow;
But all the winds from every land
Will rear no blossom from the sand.

SKYLARK AND NIGHTINGALE

When a mounting skylark sings
In the sunlit summer morn,
I know that heaven is up on high,
And on earth are fields of corn.

But when a nightingale sings,
In the moonlit summer even,
I know not if earth is merely earth,
Only that heaven is heaven.

THE BLIND BOY

Blind from my birth,
Where flowers are springing
I sit on earth
All dark.
Hark ! hark !
A lark is singing,
His notes are all for me ;
For me his mirth :—
Till some day I shall see
Beautiful flowers
And birds in bowers
Where all joy-bells are ringing.

BABY

Love me,—I love you,
Love me, my baby ;
Sing it high, sing it low,
Sing it as may be.

Mother's arms under you,
Her eyes above you ;
Sing it high, sing it low,
Love me,—I love you.

DEATH-PARTING

'Good-bye in fear, good-bye in sorrow,
Good-bye, and all in vain,
Never to meet again, my dear'—
'Never to part again.'

'Good-bye to-day, good-bye to-morrow,
Good-bye till earth shall wane.
Never to meet again, my dear'—
'Never to part again.'

THE GARLAND

Roses blushing red and white,
For delight;
Honeysuckle wreaths above,
For love;
Dim sweet-scented heliotrope,
For hope:
Shining lilies tall and straight,
For royal state;
Dusky pansies, let them be
For memory;
With violets of fragrant breath,
For death.

To my sister.
