PERFORMANCE NOTES

The piece requires simply two stereo speakers, placed on the left and right sides of the stage, a few onstage monitors, and any kind of laptop. A monitor placed near the conductor, as well as a few additional monitors placed within the orchestra, will help the performers stay in precise tempo with the electronic part. Please see the tech info.

An assistant conductor or percussionist triggers the sounds on an electronic drumpad (included with rental of materials), following the instructions in the electronic part in the score. No expertise is required from the 'electronic performer,' since the part only involves hitting numbered pads that correspond to rehearsal numbers. Because the electronic part is primarily ambient — and because the score is carefully cued when the electronics become more beat-oriented — a click track is not needed. A live, more performative version of the electronic part can be realized when the composer is present.

Movement titles should be listed in the program as follows:

- I. FROM THOSE LEFT BEHIND
II. BITTERSWEET
III. FROM THOSE DEPARTED

I.

A Shade upon the mind there passes
As when on Noon
A Cloud the mighty Sun encloses
Remembering

Emily Dickinson

That some there be too numb to notice
Oh God
Why give if Thou must take away
The Loved?

You left when we couldn't follow
got off at the wrong stop breathed in a cloud of red dust
dropped off the face of the earth

"Loved One" by Judith Wolf

Pieces of our hearts
kept you company
on your journey
through other worlds

Till you reached the place
of timelessness

and scattered us into the rain.

"Eva Died" by Judith Wolf

She spoke to me
through sounds of night

sleepless
I heard
her silence.

Eugenia will she wake to hover above where inspiration
lost through conversation
penetrates our veins filling us with brilliance

"Too Many Poems About Dead Friends"

by Judith Wolf

'Tis not that Dying hurts us so—
'Tis Living—hurts us more—
But Dying—is a different way—
A kind behind the Door—

Emily Dickinson

The Southern Custom—of the Bird—
That ere the Frosts are due—Accepts a better Latitude—
We—are the Birds—that stay.

The Shiverers round the Farmers' doors—
For whose reluctant Crumb—
We stipulate—till pitying Snows Persuade our Feathers Home.

II.

It's easy to invent a Life—
God does it — every Day —
Creation — but the Gambol
Of his Authority—

Emily Dickinson

It's easy to efface it—
The thrifty Deity
Could scarce afford Eternity
To Spontaneity—

The Perished Patterns murmur—
But his Perturbless Plan
Proceed—inserting Here—a Sun—
There—leaving out a Man—

He lives in the closet now
among the shoes and shirts,
hanging over the dirty laundry
where he used to toss his used up pants.

“Don’t Let Them Throw Away the Clothes”

by Judith Wolf

I visit his coat on Monday
but save the tux for Saturday
and then pretend to dance
among a crowd

with only the robe
for company.

III.

"After Death" by Christina Rossetti

The curtains were half drawn, the floor was swept
And strewn with rushes, rosemary and may Lay thick upon the bed on which I lay,
Where through the lattice ivy-shadows crept.
He leaned above me, thinking that I slept
And could not hear him; but I heard him say:
"Poor child, poor child:" and as he turned away
Came a deep silence, and I knew he wept.
He did not touch the shroud, or raise the fold
That hid my face, or take my hand in his,
Or ruffle the smooth pillows for my head:
He did not love me living; but once dead
He pitied me; and very sweet it is
To know he still is warm though I am cold.

I heard a Fly buzz—when I died—
The Stillness in the Room
Was like the Stillness in the Air—
Between the Heaves of Storm—

The Eyes around—had wrung them dry—
And Breaths were gathering firm
For the last Onset—when the King
Be witnessed—in the Room—

I willed my Keepsakes—Signed away
What portion of me be Assignable—and then it was
There interposed a Fly—

With Blue—uncertain stumbling Buzz—
Between the light—and me—
And then the Windows failed—and then
I could not see to see—
